Democratic Ticket.

FOR PRESIDENT,
GROVER CLEVELAND,
OF NEW YORK.
FOR VICE PRESIDENT,
ALLAN G. THURMAN,
OF OHIO.
FOR SENATOR,
J. W. BALES.
FOR CONGRESSMAN,
T. B. AYRES.

The last Republican convention not only came out boldly for the "dollar of the daddies," but nominated a ticket which most of the organs are swift to take as the ticket of the grand daddies.—Test Dispatch.

The people of this Republic have acquired confidence in the Democratic party, and desire its continuance in power. The country wants peace, prosperity, lower taxation, fair wages, wider markets, freer commerce and good government administered by honest men.—Governor Hill's Speech at County Democracy Meeting.

In the list of political corpses strewn along the highways and byways leading to and from the Chicago Convention may be placed the names of the alarm-forer and day-laborer. In the one slain by the recoil of his own mighty jaw; the other hoist by a little petard in ink intended for the use of his friend Bonebrake, chairman of the Kansas State Central Committee.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A member of the Republican National Committee says: "The ticket is an outrage to the Republican people of the country. How can we face the people of the West and ask them to vote for an Indiana railroad attorney and a Wall street money shark? We can't do it, and I am afraid we are whipped before the fight is begun. The Blaine people had the convention in their grip, and when they could not clear the field for their own man they administered to the party a dose of poison."

The speech of the President is a piece of patriotic oratory. It breathes the true sentiment of a man who, having been tried in the crucible and found almost perfect, aims to still further improve, that those who have trusted in him may be the more happy in a better and larger confidence. "I have yielded obedience only to the Constitution and my oath of office" is no vainglorious boast coming from President Cleveland. It is a fact that the whole country recognizes and the majority of people appreciate.—Philadelphia Record.

The response of President Cleveland to the national committee was decidedly the best pronouncement that he has made since he delivered his inaugural message. It is cool, collected and manly—the utterance of a man who evidently appreciates the responsibilities of his high office; of a man who assumes these responsibilities with more or less distrust of his abilities to successfully carry them out; but whose sense and conception of public duty have been so clear that he believes himself entitled to the credit of giving the country an honest and efficient administration.—Washington Critic.

Harrison is another Hayes. Like Hayes he is of old White ancestry and antecedents like Hayes he has a modest record of military service; like Hayes he has cut a brief and inconspicuous figure in the politics of his State; like Hayes he brushes his hair well back from a high and bulging forehead, wears a full beard, dresses usually in black or in somber shades, and presents altogether that appearance and flavor of respectable mediocrity which is a typical product of Western Republicanism. The countenance, the characteristics and the record of Harrison all combine vividly to recall Hayes to the public mind. He will fare as Hayes did, too, at the polls; only more so; for Hayes came within a quarter of a million of votes of having a popular majority, which it is not conceivable that Harrison will do.—Boston Globe.

Harrison is put forward as a representative of the principle of "protection." But whom is it he proposes to protect? The capitalist, not the wage earner? His zeal for protection ends at the rich man's door—it does not include the poor man's cabin. Harrison was six years in the United States Senate. As such he made a record, and by that record he will be judged. Among other bills that came before that body was one to restrict Chinese immigration—a measure to protect American workmen by excluding from our shores the hordes of cheap-labor Asiatics. Where was Senator Harrison? He was found voting against the bill! In other words, Senator Harrison voted to let the bars down so that millions of Chinese laborers might come to our shores and compete with American labor. Harrison's motto is protection—but protection to capital not to labor.—Syracuse Courier.

The Californians had a long journey homeward. During the leisure it afforded to let them ponder on the fact that while they cast their vote for the winning candidate, they had repeatedly asserted that because of his Chinese record he could not possibly carry the Pacific coast. Like March, our California friends came in roaring and went out bleating. They came hither on a whirlwind. They go hence meek when chastened. Count California and Nevada for Cleveland and Thurman.—Chicago Times.

Since the Democrats are quite ready to go to the country on the issue of Clothing vs. Whisky, and influential Republicans like Judge Kelley propose to adjourn the Mills bill discussion until after election, why waste time in further debate on that measure in the House? Let it be put to the vote of the Representatives and passed and then, if the Republicans want to adjourn it, let them try to do so in the Senate. Why fatigue the country and spend much money in the futile debate on a question on which issue is already practically joined before the country?—New York World.

A SERIOUS CASE.
County Judge Pulliam, of Brockridge county, shot and instantly killed James Miller, the richest man in the county. The shooting occurred in Pulliam's office, early Friday morning, and no one was present. Pulliam refuses to make any statement, but waived an examining trial and went to jail. A paper in Pulliam's handwriting, setting forth that Miller had been too intimate with Mrs. Pulliam, and that the trouble had been adjusted by a payment by Miller of $5,000 to Pulliam, was found unsigned on Pulliam's table, and on it lay the gold spectacles of Miller. The supposition is that Pulliam had prepared the paper, and when Miller refused to sign it and pay over the money, Pulliam shot him. It is said that Pulliam is short in his accounts about $5,000, and that the trouble is a case of blackmail. Nothing so horrible and filled with such "pure cussedness" has occurred in Kentucky for many a day.

K. P. A.
The annual meeting of the Kentucky Press Association was held in the Opera-house, Danville, on last Wednesday and Thursday, July 4th and 5th. Col. E. B. Johnson, of the Courier-Journal, was elected President; Dr. John D. Woods, of the Frankfort Capital, Vice President; Ben Harrison, of the Henderson News, Treasurer; W. P. Walton, of the Star, Editor; John G. Craddock, of the Park Kentuckian, Editor; E. G. Logan, of the Louisville Times, Editor.

The next place of meeting will be Owensboro.

The program announced in last week's CLIMAX was followed, with few exceptions. The meeting was entirely satisfactory. About twenty-five members were present.

The people of Danville received the association with open arms. On Wednesday night they spread a grand banquet at the Y. M. C. A. house. Mayor John W. Yerkes delivered the address of welcome. His effort was a happy one, and made the visiting editors feel at home. Short speeches were made by Ex-President James W. Hopper, Mr. Emmett Logan, Jr., of Louisville, and Col. E. B. Johnson.

On Thursday forenoon the members of the association were furnished chambers and driven over the city including the race course, where an exhibition trot was witnessed.

The Danville editors, Messrs. John R. Marx, W. B. Nichols, and Jos. Moore, were successful in their attentions to the association. Also were Messrs. W. S. Rowland, Robert Hann, W. G. Dunlap and M. McDowell.

The editor of THE CLIMAX found many former residents of Madison county, who now reside in Danville. Dan. Argo and wife—nee Chenault—Mr. Robert Hann and wife, Mr. S. S. Rowland and family, Mr. Morris Long and family, Mr. Dowdell, Mr. C. B. McCord and wife, Mr. Richard Cobb, Jr., and wife, Mr. J. W. Smith and wife, and Mr. J. W. Smith and wife, were seen on the way to Lexington, Tenn.

On Thursday the Louisville and Nashville Railroad placed a special train, under charge of Mr. John Miliken, traveling Passenger Agent, at the disposal of the "gang," and the whole party went like a flock of geese, whirling and whirling to Pineville. The road is an excellent one, and that time was made. John Miliken is a fast old boy—so even when he used to edit the Franklin Patriot, and the older he gets the swifter he grows—and does things up on short notice and in the latest artistic manner. On the way, the train halted ten minutes at Barbourville, where the populace with a brass band had assembled, and Mr. Jno. D. Black made a speech of welcome, and extended an invitation to spend the day. Pineville is a new town at the famous old Cumberland Ford, some miles from the site of Cumberland Gap, and on Daniel Boone's noted trail, or the "Wilderness Road." The town has one of the handsomest hotels in Kentucky, and thoroughly equipped. The 67 editors were feasted in three quarters of an hour by the watch. A splendid iron bridge has been built from the town across the river to the depot. The court-house and jail are to surpass anything of the kind in the mountains. Eason & Wiggins and Tom Brainerd, of Richmond, are the contractors. Mr. J. C. Parrish, formerly of Richmond, is a prominent merchant in Pineville. Prof. John R. Proctor, Gen. Fayette Hewitt, Governor Buckner, and Mr. Charles Dudley Warner, of Harper's Magazine, whom we met on the way home, say that Pineville has a great future. Mr. Warner and Col. C. R. Bantz match like two eggs in appearance. Mr. Colgan, editor of the Pineville Messenger, let down the bars and gave up the town to the Association. Pineville owes much to "Governor" Jim Givens, of Louisville, formerly a student of Central University, for its growth. The "Governor" has bought property at Beattyville, and gone to Europe to organize some sort of a gigantic scheme.

Frankfort voted to subscribe $100,000 to the Kentucky Midland Railroad. For this subscription the city is to receive $100,000 in stock and $100,000 in first mortgage bonds. The vote was 1,011 for to 10 against.

At Mayville, last week, Lucy Rice shot and killed Barbara Ballinger. Jealousy.

AT THE CAPITAL.

(Correspondence CLIMAX.)
WASHINGTON, D. C., July 9, 1888.
The results obtained by the police census of Washington, which has just been completed, shows the population of the city to be 227,000, or an increase of 42,000 since the census of 1880, the population being given at that time as 185,000. Probably few cities in the country, not excepting the numerous Western cities of far greater commercial importance, have equalled the substantial growth of the National Capital during the past few years, and the numerous buildings that are now in course of erection in all sections of the city, the various improvements of both public and private nature which are in progress at the present time, indicate that the city has not yet reached the height of its prosperity.

There was no celebration of the Fourth of July by the general public in Washington, but the day was observed by individuals with the usual amount of enthusiasm. Nearly every available bit of woodland within easy reach of the city was filled with picnic parties, while excursion boats and trains were filled with passengers. The oldest inhabitants' Association observed the day in their usual patriotic style. Secretary Whitney's country residence, the Grasslands, was besieged by several hundred employees of the Navy Department and their families. The party was taken from the city in coaches which the Secretary had provided, and were served with a bounteous lunch.

In response to an invitation from the officers in charge of the National Sausagefest the President and Mrs. Cleveland attended the concert given by that society in the Academy of Music in Baltimore on Tuesday evening last. The Presidential party included President and Mrs. Cleveland, Rev. and Mrs. Cleveland, Mrs. Folsom and Col. Lannett. They were provided with a special train and the run to Baltimore was made in the remarkably short time of forty minutes. The party was enthusiastically received at Baltimore, and upon entering the private boxes reserved for them in the Academy of Music they were greeted by the 1,500 singers present.

The tariff bill has been under discussion in the House of Representatives and considerable progress has been made. About twenty days have been thus far consumed in discussion, the paragraphs of the bill, and at the same rate of progress it will require ninety days to complete the discussion of the bill. It is generally thought, however, that the question will be expedited in the future, and the friends of the bill anticipate their expectation of securing its passage before the end of the month.

PARTISAN BLACKGUARDISM.

(Springfield (Mass.) Republican.)
Gen. Harrison made a very modest reference to his part in the war, when he spoke to his army comrades on Monday night. "My not conspicuous, but loyal service," he said. "That is all there is of it. He won no distinction, but he did his duty, as so many thousands did who never rose from the ranks. He deserves honor, as any soldier may, but he did not do it to try making him out as a hero. He was a man of the out of his class. Mr. Harrison at the outset of his career expressed apprehension of 'unkind and even malicious assaults.' It is a singular coincidence that he should have been saying this not far from the United States, his first in his present contest, was expressing his keen sense of the malice of partisan invective.

Both parties are too much given to gross impertinences and vile assaults upon each other. It is a singular coincidence that he should have been saying this not far from the United States, his first in his present contest, was expressing his keen sense of the malice of partisan invective.

So with the ludicrously low lampoons which the New York Tribune parades on its editorial pages. It may safely be said that no paper which pretends to respectability ever aped the bar-room talk so closely as this organ of Blahemism has done during the last few weeks in its treatment of the President and the United States. Wit that is based upon physical peculiarities is the lowest form of wit, and implies a lack of argument in itself. Mr. Cleveland's neck is a family peculiarity, as much so as the Hapsburg hair, for instance; he inherits it from an ancestry numbering many notable men, and it does not hinder its owner from wearing about as a head that holds as strong a will and as sagacious and clear-sighted an intellect as have been known in the presidency since the death of Abraham Lincoln. Yet the Tribune can give a column to the most despicable mockery of nothing else than Mr. Cleveland's neck. This sort of thing does not impose upon decent people. Blackguardism is a feeble weapon. Whoever wields it, it stamps its own impotence on the paper, or the party that chooses it, with an ineffaceable stain.

J. N. Menzies was over at Kingsville last week and told us that he was enjoying quite a boom; which is being increased by J. B. McKee's immense crop of peaches. He has 25,000 trees and for several days he has been shipping large quantities of splendid ripe ones at $4 a bushel. The trees are bending down under the immense loads and Mr. McKee, who is an Olden and knows how to make all the edges cut, will realize a handsome sum. All kinds of fruit are plentiful in the section, while there was never seen such a crop of blackberries. The woods are full of hard layers as well as workmen who are getting out and shipping vast amounts of staves, shingles and other lumber.—Stanford Journal.

Harper Far July.

Everything in this number merits careful attention, and will get it from a literary and artistic point of view, as well as in the manner of mechanical execution. All the work contained between the covers is of the very best. The frontispiece, representing a situation in Haggard's "Malwa's Revenge," is one of the sixty illustrations in the issue.

The first article describes life in the United States Academy at Annapolis, as seen by Lieutenant Kelley and is illustrated handsomely from drawings by R. F. Ziegman. All the salient features of the cadet's experience, afloat and ashore, are enumerated in a lively way, and with an enthusiasm which indicates that the writer enjoyed it all when he was at Annapolis. Mr. Ziegman's eight illustrations add much to the enjoyment of the reader. He catches the spirit of naval life admirably.

"A Midsummer Trip to the West Indies," a splendid illustrated article, Lafadio Hearn, describes the writer's summer trip through the tropical Caribbean and Windward Islands, which separate the Caribbean Sea from the broad Atlantic. It abounds in vivid descriptions of scenery in the tropics, and in interesting facts concerning tropical people. The twelve illustrations give an added charm to the article. A second paper will appear in the August number.

"The Great American Desert," by Frank H. Spearman, is an article devoted to a description of the fertility and charms of the States of Kansas and Nebraska—once supposed to be about as barren spots as could be found in North America. Now they blossom like the rose, and flourish like the green-bay tree. Mr. Spearman, among other things, describes the operation of the land laws and the methods of eastern trust companies in monopolizing Western lands. These are subjects now of much interest in the East. The article is profusely illustrated, and is also supplied with an excellent map.

Charles Dudley Warner, in his fifth paper on Great West, across the Columbia, Indianapolis, and Springfield. The people of these capitals and their ideas are frankly and fairly criticized. Not everything that the traveler saw was good, but the greater portion of it was so. Mr. Warner furnishes many valuable statistics concerning Ohio, Indiana and Illinois, gives some items of personal news, and describes with much effect his observation in the Natural Gas Regions.

"The Street Trees of Washington," contributed by Peter Henderson, contains many interesting statistics concerning one of the beauties of the National Capital. Tree-culture seems to have been intelligently carried on with gratifying results.

Under the direction of W. M. Filander Petrie the reader of "The Grand Tour—Three Thousand Years Ago" is taken to visit the ancient world (3,000 years ago) at the time the various races were becoming civilized. He is taken to have relations with one another. The thirteen illustrations provided for the article convey an excellent idea of the looks of these oldest inhabitants, and the text supplies much interesting information concerning the origin of the Egyptians.

In "Malwa's Revenge," H. Rider Haggard introduces old Allan Quatermain to the public once more in a glorious exploit in Africa, with other romantic adventures. The story, which furnishes an excuse for much facetious fighting, Part II (and the end of this story is reserved for the August number. "In Far East," by William Black, and "Annie Kilborn," by W. D. Howells, do not contain a dull line. The charmingly told dialect story, "Old Mink and Sweetheart," is by H. S. Edwards.

A. E. Aubrey has illustrated beautifully the old English song, "Jockey to the Fair," and the leader will linger over his admirable work. The other poems, "Monocled" by W. C. Richards and James Herbert Moore's "Commerce with the Skies" fill up the number outside the Drawer.

The Penn Mutual.

The attention of the public is respectfully called to the PENN MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY of Philadelphia.

The PENN MUTUAL issues all approved forms of Life and Endowment Policies. Surplus being available in reduction of second and succeeding payments, such returns of surplus have reduced the average cost of insurance much below the figure of many first-class competitors. Its "Non-Forfeiture" and "Extension" systems are the most liberal extant, full reserve being applied at lapse to extension of original sum insured, or to the purchase of "Paid Up" insurance as may be desired.

At Policies non-forfeitable, and after two years incontestable. The PENN is unequalled in financial security. Without security there is no insurance. Mere volume of assets gives no protection. The real test is applied by insurance writers, and the authorities in State Insurance Departments, viz: The ratio of assets to liabilities. In this respect the PENN stands at the head of the list having now $124 of well secured assets for every $100 of liability—present or contingent. Give us a call before insuring elsewhere.

City Taxes.

The City Taxes were due June 1st. The books and receipts are ready. Have the money when I call, and I will save me from calling more than once. Your Dog Tax is due July 1st. Pay the tax and secure a tag for your dog, or it will be taken into custody, and the owner dealt with according to the city ordinance.

President Allison then formally declared the Exposition open. After this brief address were made by the gentlemen named, Govs. Thayer, Gray and Beaver. The great street parade started promptly at 2:30, and moved without serious delay over a six-mile route. It required two hours to pass a given point, and was witnessed throughout by delighted crowds. The sun and cool breezes gave to participants and spectators a pleasant afternoon's entertainment. At Nashville, wires were run into Polk place and the telegraph instrument set upon an old-fashioned mosaic marble table which had been presented to the Exposition by the City of Nashville. The orchard grass seed harvest is now about ready. Mr. Thos. M. Lillard, a local grower, reports that he has secured a yield of about 15 bushels of clean seed per acre. The seed has been offered for sale, but he has found it an exceedingly profitable crop at any price that he has sold since he has been cultivating it. But it requires very careful attention, for if the seed is not harvested clean the price is cut fully one-half by the dealer.—Danville Advocate.

THE CLIMAX.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 11, 1888.

Big picnic at Booneborough, Saturday, July 24th.

Marriage License: George Willer and E. Long.

Madison county was more numerous represented at Chautauqua than any other county, except Fayette.

Meers, Covington & Mitchell, clothiers, have a brief chapter of 181 of literature in this issue of THE CLIMAX.

Mr. David Willis, of Kirkville, is dangerously sick with Bright's disease. He is one of the best citizens and most prominent farmers of that part of the county.

The State Medical Association convenes at Crab Orchard to-day for three days session. Dr. A. Wilkes Smith, this place, and Dr. W. B. Pigg, of Berea will be present.

The Richmond Fair will not be on a broader scale and more interesting this year than heretofore, secure one of the catalogues and peruse it carefully. Large premiums and many of them.

The statements of the four National banks of Richmond is found in THE CLIMAX to-day, and the exhibit is excellent. The total of individual deposits is $454,384.30. The total of loans and discounts is $1,422,899.47.

70 Kings, $1,000. Elsewhere in this issue of THE CLIMAX is found the premium list of the Kirkville Fair. The fair will occur on Friday and Saturday, July 27th and 28th. The list presents seventy rings with $1,000 in premiums—and don't you forget the good dinner that always goes with the Kirkville Fair.

A. K. Doty to Susan A. Doty, 24 acres, $175.

S. D. Parrish to Alvy Stevens, town lot in Elliott, exchange.

Towell, L. C. Garnett to Evans and Mrs. L. C. Garnett, $212,000.

The Camp Meeting. Twenty persons went from Richmond, on last Sunday, to Park's Hill camp meeting. Sam Jones preached and there was good music and a big rain, today nothing of the beautiful dinner. The K. C. sold round trip tickets at low rates, and will do so again next Sunday. The train leaves Richmond at 7 o'clock.

A Good Beginning. The first meeting of the Richmond Building and Loan Corporation, for the purpose of paying assessments on shares, was held on last Saturday. Of the fifty share holders representing 490 shares, forty-nine made payments. This is a fine start, and indications point to continued good work.

Base-Ball. The Deppers, of Louisville, champions of Kentucky, and the Shamrocks, champions of Ohio, will play two games on college campus, Richmond, to-day and to-morrow, July 11 and 12. Game will start at 4 o'clock. Admission to all 50 cents, children under 12 years 25 cents. These clubs met once this season and played a great game, score standing in favor of Shamrocks 3 to 0. Both teams are composed of the finest players in the country.

Teachers Examined. Twenty-seven white teachers were examined on last Friday by the County Board of Education, and granted certificates to teach. The questions are prepared by the Superintendent of Public Instruction, subject to the action of the Board of Education. The teachers as a class were better than any who have preceded them. The colored teachers will be examined next Friday. The Board consists of County Superintendent, Mrs. A. M. Milon, County Attorney J. A. Sullivan, and ex-officio Attorney J. Reed.

Elsewhere in this issue of THE CLIMAX is the announcement of Mr. Thomas Ferrell as a candidate for Jailer of Madison county, subject to the action of the Democratic party. Mr. Ferrell would make a good Jailer, and has a time or two kept off the track to give others a chance, and to prevent a disturbance from springing up in the party. He will make a good race.

Squire John Hill is announced in this week's CLIMAX as a candidate for Jailer of Madison county, subject to the action of the Democratic party. Squire Hill has demonstrated by his management of the Poor House, his ability and disposition to properly care for the public interests. He enters the race in earnest.

On last Saturday a number of farmers, about 40, met at Red House, this county, and formed a wheat pool, representing 20,000 to 25,000 bushels. Mrs. Mary B. Clay was made chairman, and Mr. Randolph Oldham, secretary. Messrs. Robert Boggs and Sanford Oldham were appointed a committee to negotiate with threshers. Mr. Harvey Cobb was appointed a committee to negotiate the sale of the wheat.

By this method the members of the pool expect to secure a low rate for threshing and a high rate for their wheat. The members will not be troubled with making arrangements for threshing. Samples of the wheat will be on exhibition Friday and every day thereafter at Red House, until the wheat is sold. The wheat is to be sold in one lot. A pool exists at Silver Creek also.

Convenience of Location. The location of the Cincinnati Commercial Buildings could not be improved upon in any manner. The main building occupies Washington Park, and another spans the canal from Twelfth to Fifteenth streets. In addition these buildings are connected with Music Hall, situated between them.

They are within ten to fifteen minutes' walk from any portion of the main part of the city, accessible either by street car lines or by the numerous other conveyances. They are in easy reach of the hotels and depots, and very comfortable lodgings may be secured in the immediate neighborhood of the Exposition grounds.

The convenience of the crowded cars, or of waiting for a crowded car, is thus reduced to a minimum.

THE CROPS.

We traveled through twenty counties, last week, and can say that the crops never looked better. The grass, which was damaged somewhat in places by dry weather, is green and growing. Wheat is thrashing out a good yield. The acreage everywhere seems to be above an average.

State Teachers' Association, Colored. The Colored Teachers' Association of Kentucky, tenth annual session, convened in this city at the Court-house, last Tuesday, and continued three days and nights, President C. C. Monroe, of Frankfort, in the chair. After devotional exercises the address of welcome was delivered by Rev. G. B. Miller, of this city, and responded to by Rev. John Jackson, of Frankfort, followed by excellent music. Address—'Object of the Institute and Institute work by Prof. Jas. S. Hathaway, of Berea. After enrollment and appointment of committees, adjourned. Wednesday morning, 9 A. M., after devotional exercises, annual address by President C. C. Monroe, of Frankfort. Elementary spelling and reading, conducted by Miss Mary Britten, of Lexington. Elementary arithmetic by Prof. J. M. Maxwell, of Louisville. Symposium—'What should be taught in the Public School?' Discussion led by Mr. William Jackson, of Lexington. Various resolutions adopted. Address—'Migratory Teachers,' by Rev. T. Augustus Reed, of Cincinnati. The addresses and exercises were attended with great interest, and the new methods of teaching reflected credit upon all the participants. The following resolutions were adopted: Whereas, we the members of the Colored Teachers' Association of the State of Kentucky, find ourselves in session on national day of the nation, and whereas we not only love the country for the country's sake, but also because of the grand idea of liberty formulated in our constitution, and

Whereas the idea in its fulfillment is not only our hope, but the hope of the nations of the world, be it

Resolved, That we share our appreciation and thankfulness for this that we now enjoy, by throwing the stars and stripes, the embodiment and emblem of this idea, to the breeze.

Resolved, That this is the sense of this association that the Federal Government should pass some measure appropriating part of the surplus now in the U. S. Treasury for public education; this to supplement the State fund to be distributed in proportion to the literacy.

That the association has heretofore with pleasure of the recent action of the State Legislature in providing for the monthly payment of teachers, a better system of examination of same and the introduction of the study of Civil Government in the public schools.

That the system of frequently changing teachers, particularly in country districts, is to be condemned and we should use every honorable means to break the pernicious practice.

That the thanks of the association are hereby tendered to the friends in Richmond who have so hospitably entertained us; to the local committee for its very successful efforts in arranging so pleasantly for us, and for the authorities of Madison county for the use of the Court-house for the meetings of our association.

Officers elected: President, Prof. James S. Hathaway, Berea; Vice-President, Miss Fannie Bronston, Richmond; Secretary, G. W. Talbert, Louisville; Treasurer, Miss Lena Davis, Danville; Historian, Prof. M. Maxwell, Louisville; Editor, Prof. C. M. Housen.

The next meeting will be in Lexington, first week in July, 1889.

The programme of the last evening's exercises, particularly the singing of patriotic songs, and the exercises and addresses by local teachers. After which a wholesome banquet was given by the young men's social club of Richmond, at the residence of Joe W. Mackey for the benefit of the teachers.

Miss Curtis Wheeling is visiting Miss Jessica Campbell.

Dr. S. M. Letcher returned on Saturday from Atlanta.

Mrs. A. J. Reed has returned from a visit to her mother in Louisville.

Prof. J. Tevis Cobb, of Henderson, is at his home in this county, for the vacation.

Miss Jane Crow has returned from Georgia accompanied by her aunt, Mrs. Brown.

Mrs. Pearce and daughter, Miss Nanine, of New York, are visiting Mrs. Nancy Walker.

Miss Mary B. Miller and Miss Carrie Forman have returned from the Boston Conservatory of Music.

Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Muth, of Decatur, Alabama, are visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Tevis at Kirkville.

Misses Katie and Della Spears, of Jessamine county, and Misses Hallie and Edith of Stanford, were here Saturday going to Esch Springs.

Mr. Dr. Middleton and daughter, Emma, of Kirkville, and Miss Nora C. Hagan are visiting friends in Nashville and Gallatin, Tenn.

Mr. J. W. Bell, of Topeka, Kansas, is in Richmond, his old home, after an absence of several years. Mr. Bell has been to Lewisburg, W. Va., to visit a sister. He looks well and is pleased with his western home.

Mrs. Dr. Pettit and little daughter, of Las Vegas, New Mexico, stopped on a short visit to relatives here, this week. She will sail from New York, Saturday for Scotland, whither she goes to look after the immense Hume estate, which awaits the proper claimants. This estate includes Wedduburn Castle, the house of Polworth and other estates left by Sir David Hume, a direct lineal ancestor of the Humes and others of Madison county. We hope Mrs. Pettit will be entirely satisfied with the Jennings and other noted estates, will never go outside the British domain.

RELIGIOUS. Rev. John A. Preston, of Virginia, will preach at the First Presbyterian Church, Sunday morning.

Rev. J. F. Williams pastor of the Baptist church in Richmond, will preach at the school-house in Kingston next Sunday afternoon, July 15th, at 4 o'clock.

Stone Walker Gormley is in name.

ALCOHOL.

Born, on the 29th ult., to the wife of Jas. Powell, a girl, and you bet Jim is stepping high.

Mrs. Sallie Williams was bitten by a copperhead snake on the 30th day of May and is not yet able to do her house work.

We have had a glorious rain and corn is looking very well. The farmers are busy sowing their corn crops, and will soon be ready for harvesting oats.

FAIRVILLE. (ESTILL COUNTY.) Warm weather and plenty of sickness.

Curtis Richardson while branding some sheep sat down on a red-hot branding iron. He looks very sheepish ever since.

J. H. Edwards has returned from Lexington and will visit his friends and relations until September when he will leave for California.

Mrs. Linda Fain, of this place, is making a grand success at school teaching and is one of Fairville's most accomplished young ladies.

A Novel Book.

While I am not a betting man, said F. J. Cheney, of the firm of F. J. Cheney & Co., I consider it my religious duty to make that follow a bet, you see he was about dead, and I guess he would have been in a fine spring, if I had not got him on the bet. You know some men had rather lose their life than a hundred, well he was one of that kind, and we both came near being out, but I saved him ten dollars. How's that? He sent for me one day and said the doctor had all given him up to die, with the catarrh. I told him that I would bet him that HALL'S CATARRH CURE would cure him or I would take him $100 if it failed. He took the latter proposition. This was three months ago; you see how he looks now, you, well as I, and one and a dandy.—American, Toledo, Ohio.
